> LE LAB

Founded in 2009 in Bordeaux, where it still operates, Clarac-Deloeuil > le lab produces stylized ceremonies ranging from opera and theatre performances to more light-hearted productions. The company chooses their plays from their repertory, rather than according to one genre or another. By doing so it shatters the traditional classification that separates works of art according to aesthetical genres inherited from the 19th century, such as opera, theatre, concert...

An artistic project:

Inspired by the site-specific artworks found in contemporary art, the company's original works aim to go beyond the usual trends of Regie Theater, and beyond the updated productions, both clearly anchored in the 1990's. In the original productions of Clarac-Deloeuil > le lab, both the play and the venue (where the play is presented) become the basis for a full-fledged aesthetic premise. The performance deliberately becomes nothing more than one of the components of a larger artistic proposal, taking place before, after and around the show.

Our form of dramatic art focuses on the works chosen, but also on the place and social environment in which they will be performed. The audience is being brought into play before, during and after the performance, and is invited to reflect on their participation in this extraordinary ceremony that we call performing arts. The performance venue becomes the space for a more global premise, similar to installation art, over the course of which the company's aesthetical codes are reinterpreted again and again..

A cultural project:

Clarac-Deloeuil > le lab is more than just a company of performing arts. It is a reflection upon the artists themselves. Firmly multidisciplinary, the company intends to create an artistic Factory, a centre for transmission and reflection upon artistic practices, a place where experienced professionals and young, emerging artists would meet and exchange.

Based in Aquitaine (South West of France), this Factory could, every summer, become a place where, on purpose, artists with diverse backgrounds and from different generations could be able to study and experiment on speculative projects, attempt to control and design language, space and time...

Depending on the results obtained at the Factory over the summer season, some projects could become part of the company's original work productions.
